The WealthTrace Solo Advisor license may be used by one advisor plus his or her assistant. Our definition of a solo advisor is a single financial planner, advisor, broker, and/or financial professional who practices in his or her own firm without another such professional as a partner, shareholder or employee. This license agreement expressly prohibits group practice models from sharing a solo advisor license.

If the firm has more than one advisor and they work in a team environment either each advisor must purchase his or her own license or the firm must purchase a Team Advisor license. There would be one login for the team and there can be one assistant or admin who inputs data for plans as well. For single license advisors who use an admin there will be an extra charge of $500 per year.

WealthTrace LLC retains all rights, title and interest in the WealthTrace Retirement Planner. If you use the WealthTrace Retirement Planner you agree NOT to modify, reverse engineer, decompile, or disassemble it except to the extent that applicable laws may prohibit such restriction.
